DESCRIPTIONS OF SPECIALIZATION AREAS

GRAPHIC DESIGN

Graphic Design uses type and images to communicate concepts and information through catalogues, brochures, posters, books, packaging and magazine design. Junior graphic design students study symbology and editorial design. Senior graphic design students complete an in-depth study in corporate identity.

ADVERTISING DESIGN

Advertising Design utilizes words and images to reinforce concepts that promote and sell products and services to meet specific marketing strategies. Junior advertising design students study traditional media including print, outdoor, transit, television, radio and direct mail. This knowledge is combined in a senior level course, where students work to create complete campaigns for corporations, non-profit groups and new product roll-outs.

INTERACTIVE DESIGN

Interactive Design focuses on interface design and navigation theory for either web-based or computer-based content. Interactive design students study subjects necessary for creating unique and enriching experiences for humans accessing digitally based media including motion graphics, sound editing and usage and creating virtual space.

ILLUSTRATION

Illustration is the art of creating a visual image that will communicate a particular idea. Through the use of various materials, including pencil, paint, pastels and the computer, the illustrator crafts a picture for advertising, institutional, book, and editorial clients.

ADMISSION TO COMMUNICATION DESIGN

An art test is required for entrance into the Communication Design Program from High School. Please contact the Admissions Office. Transfer students are required to submit a portfolio of work for entry into the CD program. Please contact the Admissions Office.

INTERNAL TRANSFER

A portfolio and recommendation letters are required for an internal transfer to Communication Design. Please speak to the department secretary for instructions. The overall QPA requirement to be considered for an internal transfer into CD is a 2.87.

GRADUATION

The QPA requirement within Communication Design for Graduation is a 2.0.
